•Camp Barry, Washington, D.C. Having received a letter from his wife, the writer infers: "Almiras capability in writing me a letter in such a short time of her study - shows that you my kind friend have taken great pains in teaching her." The writer understands that his pig is going to be killed this month, and hopes Almira will make sausages, of which he would like to have some sent. The writer suffers from not getting tea here, as coffee twice a day does not agree with him. The men in the writer's tent are very nice "Camerads" - one is a German, another a sailor who went as steersman in a whaler from New Bedford and knows Mr. Ricketson. These "Camerader" shared with the writer provisions sent them, "but now is my turn." The writer thinks of Weston every day. Describes the move from Arlington Heights to Camp Barry.

10 Jan.	To Miss Weston	Vol.31 No.37

Washington: The writer, regretting that he could not see more of the addressee, was told by her brother of her immediate departure. The writer "cannot believe there is any real danger of a democratic coup d'état." Fears the failure of war and emancipation, and that, with the independence of the South the West "will go also by herself." Then the Democrats of the middle states "will, following such men as (Horatio) Seymour, ask for a pro-slavery Union with New England out, or in simply as one state." Criticizes Lincoln for having "terribly blundered in waiting so long with his proclamation." Thinks that "if we had accepted this policy when Fremont was in Missouri the country would have accepted it for the democrats were then afraid to oppose it."

«Washington. The writer says he got called away from New York unexpectedly so didn't find out whether certain photographs had been sent to her. Specifies the kind of photograph of Miss Field that he wants. Has had many letters from his wife in England. Writes his epitaph, -"Washington has slain this man, By politics and heat together, Summer alone he might have stood, But not the summer weather." Has been expecting a telegram which didn't come. Says he will run for the Vice-Presidency on the Democratic ticket.

Washington. The author says he had a terrible night fighting heat and mosquitoes. Discusses his travelling plans. Wants to get away from the "ashington heat. Says he will follow her instructions about the photographs. "...Thanks for the account of myself taken from the papers, which describes me as being like a minie ball with gloves on. ..." Suggests that Miss Field adopt a middle initial because all successful women have one. Says he will do what she asks with the proofs of the Dickens papers. Miss Field's friend, Elliott, suggested that his novel be published in England with the writer's name on the title page.

	To Helen Eliza (Benson) Garrison	No.142

Chicago. Went to Chicago and stayed with a family named Freer. Addressed a large audience in the evening, where he met a number of people from New England. Describes Chicago. Dislikes having the newspapers print his lecture in full, since it makes it impossible for him to give it repeatedly. People read it in the papers instead of going to hear him. Was introduced to his audience by Rev. Robert Collyer. The weather is as mild as summer. Was much relieved to get letters from home, and to hear that the Liberator is getting along all right. W. P. Garrison will be married on Dec.6th. A.L.s. 6 p. 8 x 5 in.

Addressed to "Dear Wife" [redacted] in pencil and signed with initials.

To James Miller McKim

Chicago. Received J. M. M.'s letter introducing him to Rev. Dr. Duffield. Spoke twice in Detroit to small audiences. Had to compete with C. F. Browne ("Artemus Ward") and the theatrical performances of Mr. & Mrs. Charles Kean. Hopes that his lecture concerning the freedmen's cause will help it along in Detroit. Favors the union of the Christian Commission and the National Freedmen's Aid Commission. L. Coffin and Mr. Walden called on him. Will lecture in Cincinnati and is glad that G. Thompson will be with him there. Addressed a large and respectable audience in Chicago. Complains of the press coverage.

Chicago. Will go to Princeton, Ill. Mr. & Mrs. Norman B. Judd dined with him. Has moved from the Freer home to the residence of Mr. & Mrs. Doggett. Is much troubled by hoarseness, caused partly by lecturing and partly by talking to people afterwards. Went to hear R. Collyer preach and met Gerrit Smith at the church. Is greatly impressed by the public buildings of Chicago.
